Know your neighbor

MR. AND MRS. EARL WARREN of High St. — The Warrens sort of live in the country "within the city," because they make their home at the former Elmhurst Center on the property of the Hyde School for Boys.

"I just love the woods and living in a small town," commented Mrs. Warren who is originally from Massachusetts.

The Warrens came to Bath about a year and a half ago to make their home. Earl Warren, who is the son of the late Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Warren of Bath, has always wanted to return to Bath to live. Before coming to Bath the Warrens lived in Hawaii for four years where he was an English teacher. He is presently head of the English department at the Hyde School.

Mrs. Warren who is a registered nurse works part time at Hyde School as the school nurse. The rest of the time she is busy caring for her home and five children, Cynthia, 9; Leonard, 7; Jane, 6; Nancy, 2; and Carolyn, one year.

She is a member of the choir at the United Church of Christ, Congregational, and only this fall enrolled in an art course "as a beginner" at Bailey Evening School. She is also assisting the Girl Scout troop at Fisher School.

Warren likes to read and only recently took up a pilot program

Five hunters receive fines

BATH — Five duck hunters were found guilty of game law violations in Sixth District Court Tuesday, and more hunting cases are scheduled to be heard by the court later.

Charles F. MacDonald, 58, Bath, charged with excess bag limit (three black ducks), pleaded guilty, was found guilty and fined $15.

And four hunters pleaded guilty and were found guilty of hunting ducks from a power boat. Each was fined $20.

They are Byron K. Shea, 27, Orr's Island; Peter J. Fides, 28, Orr's Island; Martin Carl Becker, 34, Bowdoinham, and Robert L. Wellman, 21, Bowdoinham.

The cases were heard by Judge Robert L. Browne.

LADIES AID

BATH — Ladies Aid of the United Church of Christ, Congregational, will meet Friday at 1:30 p.m. for a regular business meeting and program.

at Hyde School to assist in teaching the boys a survival and rescue course. This means most of his spare time is spent out of doors with the boys. To teach the course, he is also enrolled in a pilot and boating course at Bailey Evening School.

"I very strongly go along with developing Bath's waterfront and believe the addition to Morse High School is very necessary in order that our children will have the opportunity for better education here," Mrs. Warren said. "We like it here very much and hope to stay."
